Dear Eighth-Grade Student,

Hello! My name is Rina and I am moving to the United States with my family in July. In September I will start eighth grade in America. I will miss my friends at home, but I'm excited about the move and about starting eighth grade.

I have a friend who said that most junior-high school students in America keep their school work in something called a "backpack." I don't know what that is. Will you write back to me and explain what a "backpack" is and what I should keep in it? Getting a good start in my new school is important to me and your information will really help. Maybe someday I can return the favor to someone else by giving them information they need!

Sincerely,
Rina
